School board to hold new teachers' pay

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District Board has decided not to pay 15 new teachers at the end of August in order to avoid violating a section of a new Mississippi school law.

The board made the decision on a four-to-one vote in a special meeting Friday afternoon after Board Attorney Lucien Gex explained that members could be prosecuted for breaking the law in question.

Superintendent of Education Roger D. Oge' contended that the board could also be sued by a teacher or teachers for breach of contract.

Gex agreed that prosecution on both matters is possible but not likely.

He said board members could be held personally liable in a civil case as well as liable as board members.

Some criminal misdemeanor charges might also be attached, Gex said.

He advised the board not to break the law in view of the fact that another school board in Hancock County had been sued within the last few years on an improper bidding procedure.

Board member L.D. Carter, whose motion to go ahead and pay the teachers died for lack of a second, was the only member voting against holding the teachers' pay.

Port commission settles lawsuit

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission voted Monday to settle a lawsuit with Bond Paving Company of Gulfport.

In the settlement, the county will pay Bond $221,712 for resurfacing work on Taxway E and construction of a parking apron at Stennis International Airport.

The county had refused to pay Bond final payments on the projects due to problems with the asphalt and an extensive overrun of contract time.

Following a February 1985 trial in Hancock County Circuit Court, Judge Ruble Griffin ruled in favor of Bond and disallowed liquidated damages claimed by the county commission.

Griffin ordered the county in May 1985 to pay Bond $233,207 plus interest from Sept. 12, 1984 on the projects.

The judgement was being appealed when the settlement was reached.

The settlement reached reflects a savings of $40,000 from the initial judgement and interest charges, according to Port and Harbor Commission Director James DeBlanc.

The revenue sharing fund has been eliminated because the funding has been discontinued.

The hearing begins at 6:30 p.m. at city hall and will be followed by the regular board of aldermen meeting at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting was called by Oge', who told the board members that teacher contracts carry a provision stating "the first payment should be made on the last regular school day of the calendar month in which school opens."

The new law, according to Gex, became effective July 1 and affects only newly employed certified personnel. In the Bay district, those affected include 15 teachers.

The law states in part, "Those newly employed certified employees who commence performance of their duties at least 10 working days prior to September and who have elected to be paid in 12 equal installments shall receive payment for the number of days worked in the month of August on the last day of August, with the remainder of the contract to be paid in 12 equal monthly installments."

The teachers in the Bay district have worked only eight days and Gex said the law provided no guidance on payment to personnel who had worked less than 10 days.

Gex explained that the board is bound by statute and is unable to legally take any action not specifically stated in the law.

Oge' called the matter a "conflict between ethics and legality" and said he felt no court would prosecute the board for paying the teachers.

However, Gex pointed out that the contract contains a statement explaining which statutes govern its terms.

That statement lists five sections of the Mississippi Code of 1972 and contains the words "and any other applicable statutes," which Gex contends applies to the new law.

One teacher pointed out that she and four of the district's other teachers employed for the first time this year signed their contracts together on May 27, about five weeks before the new law took effect.

Gex said that the matter still falls under jurisdiction of the new law.

Oge' contended that the district

BOND SET FOR SUSPECT—A $500,000 bond was set Thursday for Freddie Anthony Rodriguez, 14, by Hancock County Justice Court Judge Joseph Dobson at a preliminary hearing Thursday. Rodriguez was arrested Wednesday and charged with the Aug. 19 murder of Pearlington resident Mrs. Eldora Summers, 69 in her home. The teenager is being held in the juvenile detention area of the Hancock County jail.

County school board pays new teachers

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Although new teachers in the Hancock County School District worked only seven days with students in August, they received a pay check last week.

School Board President Billie Faye Lyons said Saturday the district's new teachers were paid for days worked in August.

Bay St. Louis Municipal School District's new teachers were not paid.

Superintendent Terrell Randolph said county teachers were being paid if they had been at the school for 10 or more days.

The Uniform School Law passed this summer required that teachers work 10 or more days in August to receive a check at the end of the month.

County schools started Aug. 21, giving teachers and students seven days in school during the month.

Randolph said the days teachers attended staff development programs were being counted in the 10 days.

However he added that they would be paid only for those days actually worked in the month, not an entire month's salary as has been done in the past.

One arrested for burglary of Chas. B. Murphy School

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Kenneth White, 20, of Pearlington was arrested early Saturday morning for the burglary of Charles B. Murphy Elementary School in Pearlington.

Hancock County Constable Gary Bennett caught White as he was leaving the school. Bennett was responding to an alarm set off at the school.

White is being held in Hancock County Jail under a $5,000 bond.

Investigator Glenn Strong of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department said it was undetermined at this time if any items had been taken from the school.

Kellar requests joint meeting of county, wastewater boards

By DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors is planning a joint meeting with the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District Board of Directors to discuss the county's financial participation in the district's current improvement project.

The joint meeting has been set for 6:30 p.m. Sept. 3 at Waveland City Hall.

Board of Supervisors President A.A. Kellar, who serves on the wastewater board with Waveland Mayor John Longo Jr. and Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Franckiewicz Jr., asked the supervisors Thursday to approve a $29,000 county contribution to the district's budget.

Kellar had agreed Wednesday during a district board meeting to propose that the county contribute to the wastewater budget.

The $29,000 would be used for administrative expenses and employee salaries, District Administrator Ethel Schott said.

Kellar's request for the joint meeting was prompted by Beat

Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner's request for more information.

Ladner said he was opposed to providing the county with the money before county residents are able to obtain any services through the district.

The county is a participant in the district's five-part improvement project, which will eventually link the Waveland and Bay St. Louis sewerage systems.

Disturbance call leads to arrests

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Answering a disturbance call on Felicity Street led Bay St. Louis police to arrest two Tennessee women on robbery charges.

Tammie Lynn Seale, 24, and Vickie Reba Buckner, 33, both of Chattanooga, Tenn., were transported to the Bay St. Louis police station after Officer Chuck James broke up a fight, according to Bay Detective David Murtagh.

While at the police station, the women released information which led Murtagh to contact the Lexington, South Carolina Sheriff's Office.

South Carolina law enforcement officials indicated that the women were wanted for questioning in connection with the Aug. 9 robbery of the Pioneer Pumper Gas Station in Lexington.

Both Seale and Buckner waived extradition and are awaiting transportation to South Carolina. They are currently being held in the Hancock County Jail.

Department of Energy slates plant managers symposium

The Mississippi Department of Energy and Transportation is sponsoring a Plant Managers' Symposium in Biloxi at the Royal d'Iberville on Friday, Sept. 5, beginning at 9 a.m.

U.S. Representative Wayne Dowdy, who represents Mississippi's 4th Congressional District and is a member of the House Energy and Commerce Committee, will open the symposium with the keynote address.

The symposium, which will end at 4 p.m., is held annually to help keep managers of industrial plants, or other large energy consuming businesses, informed on the latest issues concerning energy and energy conservation. The primary topic to be covered at this year's symposium is the change in federal natural gas regulation brought on by Federal Energy Regulatory Commission Orders 436 and 436A.

The two regulations are part of recent federal efforts to decrease natural gas price regulation at the well head. The thrust of the new regulations appears to many to be aimed at opening up the gas markets so that utilities and other large end users of natural gas can deal directly with producers and utilize pipelines principally as common carriers rather than as merchants of gas.

The new regulations also appear to make it possible for some large end users to bypass a utility company's system and take their gas directly from pipelines. Both the new federal regulations and regulatory efforts on the part of states, including Mississippi, to deal with FERC Orders 436 and 436A, are having an impact on how industry handles its energy needs.

The morning session of the conference will deal with the new changes and how they are affecting Mississippi industry and other large end users operating in the state. The afternoon portion will include sessions on electrical utilities, hazardous waste, maintenance management and how to motivate people.

Speakers at the morning session include Don Selles, Ergon, Inc.; Joseph Sims, Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association; John Grower, Brunini, Grantham, Grower and Hewes; William C. Randolph, Mississippi Valley Gas Company; and Nielsen Cochran, Public Service Commission for the state's Central District.

In the afternoon, Charles Chisolm, Mississippi Department of Natural Resources, will address hazardous waste; Jim Noles, Weyerhaeuser Paper Company, will talk on motivating people; and William Shelton, Metro Design and Engineering Company, will address maintenance management. Immediately following lunch, participants will be able to join round-table discussions with either, Mississippi Power and Light Company, Mississippi Power Company, or Tennessee Valley Authority, to discuss the future of electrical rates and services in the three utility areas within the state.

For more information on the symposium, contact Ms. Brenda Morant or Mrs. Selma Brooks at the Mississippi Department of Energy and Transportation, Suite 300-Dickson Building, 510 George Street, Jackson, Mississippi 39202-3096, or by telephone at 961-4733 from within the Jackson

MPC files second performance evaluation

A performance review of Mississippi Power Company's operations show the utility is due a two percent revenue increase in October under a new rate setting plan which prohibits the utility from filing large rate increases.

The Gulfport-based utility has filed the 12-month evaluation with the state Public Service Commission for the quarter ending June 30, 1986. Under the new Performance Evaluation Plan, the company is reviewed each quarter for the previous 12-months and, depending on the company's performance and financial health, rates can go up, down or remain the same.

"To the customer purchasing 1,000 kilowatt-hours this means a monthly increase of $1.54," Ed Blakeslee, vice president of Marketing said. "Even with this small increase, MPC's charge will still be 4 percent below what it was in 1983. We will continue to have some of the lowest rates in the nation."

The June evaluation is the second MPC review under the new rate plan. When the PSC approved the new procedure on August 7, it made the plan retroactive to the first quarter of 1986. The evaluation for the first quarter of 1986 showed no change in rates.

Blakeslee said the company's overall performance rating was 6.71 out of a possible 10 on a scale where

FARM WEEK

An upcoming edition of "Farmweek" looks at new FHA policies, and tentative plans for the show include an interview with Vance Clark, national director of that agency. It airs at 7:30 p.m., Monday, September 8, on Mississippi ETV.

Sixty-five percent of Mississippi farm operations are funded at least in part by the FHA, a higher percentage than any other state. "Farmweek" shows how the policy changes will affect Mississippi.

In short, the changes revolve around the FHA's move from being a lending institution to guarantor.

Also on the program will be a related story about changes being made in the Federal Land Bank.

"Farmweek" is a co-production of Mississippi ETV and the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Don't forget the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon sponsored locally by the Waveland Civic Association tonight and tomorrow. Jimmy Lagasse Jr., as always, has been working very hard getting everything lined up for the telethon which will run from 6 p.m. tonight through 6 p.m. Labor Day.

Persons wishing to make a pledge can do so by calling 467-4134 or 467-9248.

Lagasse says he hopes to be at the telephones for the 24 hours, as he has done on nine previous years.

It is good to see the City of Bay St. Louis is resurfacing the 600 block of Union Street off the Old Spanish Trail.

The much-used street had been in bad shape for many years.

We know the many residents who use the street will be very happy when work is completed.

The cool breeze was sure welcomed on Friday morning by many folks.

It has been a very long hot and dry summer for our area.

I guess we will be looking for some warm weather in a few months.

A very impressive ceremony was held on Thursday morning for the change of command at the Naval Oceanographic Office at NSTL.

Captain Johnny M. Sears, USN, was relieved of his command by Captain William J. Zuberbuhler, USN.

This was also the retirement ceremony for Capt. Sears, after 30 years with the Navy.

He and his wife Neuva have resided at Diamondhead since he assumed command of the Naval Oceanographic Office some three years ago.

I have had the good fortune of becoming friends with the Sears family through church activities, and wish them well in their retirement.

They have added very much to Hancock County with their presence, and we hope they continue to reside in our community.

It is hoped everyone will have a safe Labor Day weekend.

A LOST TALENT?

The Speaker was representing the University of Alabama. He was describing for the Senate Finance Committee of the Mississippi Legislature the role of his university in his adopted state's economic development efforts.

What he was telling Mississippi's legislators was that his university has taken on a major responsibility for the economic advancement of Alabama. The university's research capability, in fact, has been geared to the state's business and industrial needs.

The speaker spelled out results of the university's efforts: millions of dollars have been invested in Alabama because of the university's research capabilities and because of its unique commitment to the development of the state.

Dr. Mac Portera, executive assistant to the president of the University of Alabama, was invited to describe his university's role in economic development for members of the Senate Committee.

His appearance came on the first day of the committee's examination of Mississippi's economic development activities.

The committee chairman, Senator Bob Montgomery of Canton, has already announced his goal: the creation of a statewide economic development plan for Mississippi, with the role of every state institution spelled out in that plan and with identifiable means and methods of measuring performance.

Dr. Portera, who heads the University of Alabama's economic development program, has gained national recognition for his accomplishments and for the accomplishments of his university.

An interesting note: Dr. Portera is a native Mississippian, a Clay Countian, and a former staff member of Mississippi's Research and Development Center.

He left the R & D Center to move to the University of Alabama.

Another talent lost from Mississippi? Perhaps we can find a way to bring him back.

JAPANESE-MSU PARTNERSHIP EXAMPLE OF RESOURCE USES

I had the pleasure recently of witnessing the beginning of a very special partnership between the public sector of Mississippi and the private sector of Japan. The event was the initiation of a contract between Honda Motor Company of Japan and Mississippi State University of Starkville.

The Honda Company will be working with research professors at MSU to develop an experimental aircraft, under a contract that is more than $1 million in commitment from Kansas.

With these types of cooperative ventures continuing in our state, our state universities can become a vital link in our efforts at economic development for Mississippi.

The uniqueness of this agreement for Mississippi presents a prime example of the public-private sector partnership that we have been endorsing for the past three years. If the private sector will take advantage of the great minds that exist at our state university, especially our research institutions, businesses can benefit from that research.

On the other hand, if universities will actively pursue such agreements with industry, the universities can find additional resources during these tight funding years and can make an exciting investment in the future of their communities.

It was especially exciting to note that this particular partnership occurred between a Mississippi university and the Japanese. Mr. Nobuhiko Kawamoto, president of Honda R&D, told those of us attending the briefing on the project that his company chose Mississippi State University for two reasons: first, because of its outstanding research program, and secondly, because of the "warm hearts" of our people.

We have repeatedly said when we can get industrialists to come into Mississippi and see what's going on in this state and meet our people, we can convince them to locate here. This agreement is a prime example.

It was also exciting to note that Mississippi State University was praised as a research institution, chosen in competition for this particular project over Stanford University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and the University of Kansas.

With these types of cooperative ventures continuing in our state, our state universities can become a vital link in our efforts at economic development for Mississippi.

In Mississippi as we try to find ways to improve our economic situation and move up the ladder, I am convinced we must continue to focus on bettering our educational system.

This is true not only for our state but also for the rest of the country. Good schools and good teachers do relate to a state's ability to attract industry and create new jobs.

Business and industry choose to locate in areas where their workers' children can get a good education. In many cases, the quality of education is a priority over how much an industry must invest financially to locate in a state.

I recently met with Labor Secretary Bill Brock to find out what the Labor Department, working in cooperation with the Departments of Education and Commerce and with the individual states, is doing to emphasize education's importance to job creation.

He says the biggest job of the Department of Labor these days is to improve the skill base of the United States in order that we can be more competitive.

The Labor Department is working to increase productivity, provide training, improve educational levels and give people a chance to constantly upgrade their skills so they can in turn upgrade their income and economic growth.

Overall the country is in good shape. We are making progress in Mississippi. It looks like the unemployment numbers are going to come down, and employment is going to continue to go up.

of strokes occur in people under age 60. The frequency of stroke doubles with each successive decade of life, and men and women are equally susceptible.

The greatest risk factor for stroke is hypertension or high blood pressure. If hypertension is controlled, a stroke is much less likely to happen. A person can reduce the risk of hypertension by avoiding obesity, a high fat and high cholesterol diet, and cigarettes. Diabetes also puts person at risk for high blood pressure. Even with very good health habits, however, one can develop hypertension, so the older one becomes, the more closely he should watch his blood pressure under a physician's supervision.

Exercise has not proven to prevent stroke, but it likely helps indirectly. Exercise doesn't necessarily protect a person from hypertension, so even if he or she runs every day, the blood pressure still should be checked and any medications that have been prescribed to control it should be taken. Otherwise the person remains at risk for stroke.

Some dietary factors may help to prevent high blood pressure and reduce the risk for stroke. Foods such as those which contain adequate amounts of calcium and potassium should be included in the diet. These factors are still under investigation, however, and since an overdose of these nutrients can be dangerous, it's best to not exceed the recommended daily allowance.

Half a million strokes occur annually in the U.S. making it the third most common cause of death in the country. Some 150,000 people each year lose their lives as victims of stroke.

Much worse however, is the fact that stroke often disables more than it kills. Stroke can affect the ability to move, to speak or to keep one's balance, depending on which part of the brain is cut off from the blood supply. Losses of vision, sensation and a variety of other functions also can result.

Rehabilitation is possible, and the younger the patient, the better the chance for recovery. Recovery also depends partially on whether the affected section of the brain is destroyed or merely injured. Some evidence indicates that other parts of the brain may be able to replace functions of the destroyed portion.

Most stroke-susceptible people are the elderly, though some 20 percent

State tax amnesty program opens tomorrow

JACKSON—State Tax Commissioner Nicki Martinson reports Mississippi's one-time, three-month tax amnesty program will begin Monday.

"Tax amnesty is a one-time only opportunity for all taxpayers, both individuals and corporations, to pay delinquent taxes not previously assessed that were due and owing before 1986 without interest, penalty or criminal prosecution," Ms. Martinson said.

Ms. Martinson further stated that, "Non-compliance with state tax laws or the failure to take advantage of this opportunity will result in strict penalties for delinquent taxpayers or non-filers."

She said, "Tax evasion is now a felony crime in Mississippi, punishable by up to five years in jail and/or fines of up to $100,000 for individuals and $500,000 for corporations. These penalties will apply to any person who qualified for the tax amnesty program but failed to pay all taxes owed during the amnesty period or to any person who willfully attempts to evade or assist in the evasion of any tax imposed by the Tax Commission after July 1, 1986."

"We are trying to identify or alert everyone who qualified for this program of its existence because after November 30, it will be too late," Mrs. Martinson said. "The idea of tax amnesty is not new. Many other states have offered similar amnesty programs, after they passed tougher collection enforcement laws."

"Tax amnesty," she said, "is available to anyone who has failed to file a Mississippi tax return, who has under-reported income, or who is delinquent in paying a past state tax obligation. Amnesty is not available to those who are the subject of tax-related criminal prosecution or investigations. In addition, the amnesty program does not apply to any taxes owed at the local or federal government level."

The State Tax Commission has prepared brochures, which were mailed to 43,000 taxpayers with sales tax returns and to another 21,000 taxpayers with use tax returns. These brochures outline the program and help potential taxpayers determine if they qualify.

MISSISSIPPI TAX AMNESTY

IS IT FOR YOU?

Any taxpayer who requests amnesty, makes application, files or amends all returns and pays all delinquent taxes is eligible. A taxpayer must apply in writing to the State Tax Commission on a form prepared especially for this tax amnesty program.

What Is TAX AMNESTY?

TAX AMNESTY is a one-time opportunity for all taxpayers to pay delinquent taxes not previously assessed and that were due and payable before 1986 without interest, penalty or criminal prosecution.

TAX AMNESTY was enacted during the 1986 session of the Legislature. It is a one time program which will run from September 1, 1986 through November 30, 1986 only.

Why Should You Apply for TAX AMNESTY?

Tax evasion has been made a felony crime in Mississippi, punishable by up to 5 years in jail and/or fines of up to $100,000 for individuals and $500,000 for corporations.

These penalties apply to any person:

- who qualified for the TAX AMNESTY program and failed to pay all taxes owed during the AMNESTY period, or
- who after July 1, 1986, willfully attempts to evade or assist in the evasion of any tax imposed by the Tax Commission.

Previously assessed taxes are not eligible for AMNESTY.

These penalties apply to any person:

• who qualified for the TAX AMNESTY program and failed to pay all taxes owed during the AMNESTY period, or

• who after July 1, 1986, willfully attempts to evade or assist in the evasion of any tax imposed by the Tax Commission.

Previously assessed taxes are not eligible for AMNESTY.

Paul taught, "Rather clothe yourselves with the Lord Jesus Christ, and do not think about how to gratify the desires of the sinful nature." (Romans 13:14 NIV)

For "clothe" the King James Version uses the phrase "put ye on." To the Galatians Paul said, "You are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, for all of you who were baptized into Christ have clothed yourselves with Christ." (Galatians 3:26-27)

Being "clothed" is the process of being saved. The things which involve being saved are not found in just one passage of scripture. Salvation of the alien sinner consists of more than a mental assent that Jesus is the Son of God. All of the conditions God has set for the alien sinner must be obeyed for one to be saved.

Paul said, "For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved. How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? And how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? And how shall they hear without a preacher?" (Romans 10:13-14)

"So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." (Romans 10:17)

Before one can call upon God he must believe in the Christ taught in the word of God. (Hebrews 11:6) Calling involves more than crying from the house top. Jesus said, "Not everyone who says to me, 'Lord, Lord' will enter the kingdom of heaven, but only he who does the will of my Father who is in heaven." (Matthew 7:21)

The believer must repent of his sins. (Acts 17:30) The penitent believer must confess his faith in Christ before men. (Romans 10:9-10; 1 Timothy 6:12) Baptism is the final act to which one must submit to be "clothed," "put on Christ,"

Picayune Arboretum to feature native landscapes, evolution

A new Mississippi institution—the Crosby Arboretum of Picayune—soon will show and tell the public all about south Mississippi's former and future woodland glory at selected sites now under preservation and scientific restoration.

An arboretum, as generally conceived, is simply a living display of trees of many species identified for the sake of increased knowledge of them.

The Crosby Arboretum, however, goes beyond this concept of individual tree or shrub specimens removed from their natural environment in that it displays native landscapes and the evolution of their indigenous ecologies over extended periods of time.

It also demonstrates the role that man has played in this process, or the co-evolution of man and his land.

The purpose of the Crosby Arboretum is concern itself with the scientific, horticultural, and aesthetic role of native trees and associated flora of the Pearl River Drainage Basin in both natural and urban landscapes. Its displays, educational programs, public services activities, and research efforts are to reflect this focus.

These efforts are centered in south Mississippi where massive stands of yellow pine timber are combined with mixed hardwoods in an undulating forest that once stretched from Jackson to the Gulf Coast.

The hardwoods that grew in the company of the virgin pine timber included such characteristic species as beech, water tupelo, swamp bay, yellow poplar, magnolia and scores of others.

Beneath the canopy of this forest Indians subsisted for centuries, and white pioneers hacked clearings in quest of a livelihood from the pristine land and its abundance of resources.

The educational institution whose efforts will spotlight south Mississippi's forestlands—past, present, and future—had its beginning as a living memorial to the late L. O. Crosby Jr., whose life and livelihood as a southwest Mississippi lumberman and businessman were closely intertwined with the area's resources.

Yet, since its beginning the undertaking has expanded to a vision of a public botanical center closely tied to the educational and cultural life of the region with its supporters including not only Crosby family members but educators, civic leaders, scientists, environmentalists and public officials.

A visit to this region today reveals diverse reminders of the Crosby imprint on town and country. The hamlet of Crosby bears the family name, and the town of Picayune has its L. O. Crosby Memorial Hospital and the Margaret Reed Crosby Library.

The Crosby name became synonymous with the region's timber growing and logging industries, and both the production and processing of tung oil in the area prior to Hurricane Camille's devastation of the orchards in 1969.

It seems fitting today that traffic and business as usual bustles along Interstate 59 just south of Picayune where, unknown to most of these travelers, a poignant chapter of local and regional history was played out by pioneer lumbermen.

Earlier in this century L. O. Crosby was one of few men in the area with a burning vision of innovative options to put into play when the last south Mississippi virgin piney woods went the way of the crosscut saw and dummyline rails.

The setting for the arboretum's Interpretive Center at Picayune is a 64-acre pine savannah where the center will display over 400 species of plants native to the Pearl River Basin in Mississippi and Louisiana.

The arboretum also has 10 other natural area sites containing more than 1,600 species of native plants in their natural habitats.

These remote yet accessible preserves allow the arboretum to hold in trust a healthy diversity of flora impossible to contain on a single site as a major resource for students, professionals, and anyone who finds joy in the world of nature.

Yet in the evolution of the land, the Interpretive Center site at Picayune is part of a section of land crossed diagonally by I-59 about midway between Hattiesburg and New Orleans where the forests in the first half of this century were cut severely, and Crosby and others sought to develop rowcrop agriculture ... the cutover site to provide subsistence for timber cutters and millmen idled when the last whistle of an exciting era of Mississippi history had blown.

In the rubble of decaying stumps and pine straw the evolutionists switched from trees to peach and satsuma orchards, strawberry patches and vegetable fields.

The produce was shipped by rail to northern markets aboard refrigerated freight trains. Then followed changes in tax laws, forestry regeneration, further crop diversification, and livestock breeding.

Today a cycle of man and his land has gone nearly full circle with a return of vast commercial forests in the area. And at the arboretum's nature trails or from the tranquility of a cathedral-like pavilion at the Interpretive Center, a new generation may bear witness to a progressive return of the trees, plants, and wildlife of an earlier time.

This arboretum today pays a deserved tribute to the Piney Woods land and its people through a combination of ideas and encouragement by a dedicated board of trustees, staff, consultants, and members.

Their efforts are bringing to Mississippi and its kaleidoscope of visitors a natural treasure after a significant triumph of one of history's noteworthy cycles.

Franckiewicz asks county to waive city landfill fees

BY DENA BISNETTE

Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Franckiewicz Jr. has asked the Hancock County Board of Supervisors to waive charges assessed to Bay St. Louis and Waveland for the county's landfill.

Franckiewicz appeared before the board of supervisors Thursday to ask for the waiver of charges, which he said are currently being paid with revenue sharing funds.

Revenue sharing has been discontinued.

According to Beat Four Supervisor Sam Pernicaro, who oversees the landfill, Bay St. Louis is assessed $18,000 per year and Waveland is assessed $11,000 per year out of a total $118,000 annual budget.

The county provides the rest of the funding for operation and maintenance of the landfill, which is located in the Catahoula Community.

The funds collected from the city pay for operation and maintenance only and are not a use charge, Pernicaro explained.

He said the present charges were implemented about three years ago after the volume of household garbage hauled to the facility from both cities increased.

Originally, Bay St. Louis paid 30 percent of the cost and Waveland paid 20 percent.

The only use charges at the landfill are assessed on private contractors who haul in garbage from Picayune and other areas outside the county.

Franckiewicz, however, contend that the charges being levied against Bay St. Louis are not in line with the amount of garbage the city's collection contractor, Gulf Coast Waste and Disposal, delivers to the landfill.

The mayor said Bay St. Louis provides four truckloads of compacted garbage per day.

"When the landfill first opened, the cities paid a little extra because we provided the majority of the traffic. I feel now it would be more appropriate to put everybody on an equal basis and waive our fees," Franckiewicz said.

"The people from Diamondhead don't have to pay extra, and we don't want to subsidize Picayune."

He called the situation that will exist if the city has to raise taxes for the landfill "double taxation."

"We already pay a tax on the landfill, then we'll have to pay more tax," the mayor said.

He compared the matter to having to pay a tax on a service not received.

Board of Supervisors President A.A. Kellar told Franckiewicz that county residents pay for many services only city residents actually are able to use, such as the county library system.

Franckiewicz pointed out that there is a library branch in Kiln.

"You don't think the people at Flat Top go to Kiln to use the library? Do you think they can just walk across the street?" Kellar said.

Pernicaro said there is no way the contractors is already monitored.

county can make up the almost $30,000 that would be lost if the cities did not contribute to the operation and maintenance of the landfill.

"We really need twice the amount of money we are getting now, more personnel and more equipment in order to keep the landfill up-to-date with U.S. Environmental Protection Agency standards," he said.

The landfill was inspected last month and found to be deficient in meeting five of the agency's standards. A follow-up inspection is scheduled for on or about Sept. 15.

Pernicaro said temporary work could help the landfill meet most of the violated standards, but a permanent solution is not possible.

Covering the garbage at the landfill to make it pass the Sept. 15 inspection will take parts of all five beat crews and will take the workers and machinery away from their usual tasks for four days to one week, he added.

Even if spending for the landfill were to remain at the present level, honoring the request from Franckiewicz would cause an increase in the county tax levy.

"We would have to raise our millage and you would be included," Kellar said.

Pernicaro agreed to monitor the amount of garbage that comes into the landfill by any means other than private vehicles for one month before taking any action on the mayor's request.

He said the amount brought in by contractors is already monitored.

Wastewater board to consider budget

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Waveland Regional Wastewater Management Board of Directors is expected to approve its 1986-87 budget Wednesday.

The budget, proposed at a workshop meeting this week, covers operations and maintenance for the district and totals $290,119.

The amended budget for the current fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30, is estimated at $260,324.

The major proposed increases include personnel salaries and benefits, utilities and vehicle expenses and insurance.

Last year's $58,200 for employee salaries, amended to $70,000 with an increase in staff during the current year, has been changed to allow the addition of one part-time summer employee and one full-time employee to the district's existing five-person staff.

The summer employee's primary responsibility will be cutting grass at the Waveland wastewater treatment plant and the sewage lagoon in Bay St. Louis.

The full-time employee will probably be added halfway through the fiscal year, District Chairman John Longo Jr. said.

The employee benefits for the total staff will then increase from $16,100 to $17,000.

Utilities and telephone expenses are expected to increase from $3,100 budgeted for the current year to $4,500.

The increase in vehicle expenses, which are budgeted at $2,880 for the current year, is expected to amount to $4,000, with insurance increasing from $5,000 to $6,000.

Wednesday's meeting will be 6:30 p.m. at Waveland City Hall.

New Bay merchants group elects officers

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Officers were elected Thursday at the second meeting of the newly organized Downtown Bay St. Louis Merchants.

The officers elected were Ed Jurkowski, president; Mary Daggert, vice-president; Charles Benvenuti, secretary; Rick Eagan, treasurer; and Clyde Ladner, Carroll Bowers, Tyson McMahon, and Ann Latham, advisory council members.

Some discussion was held for the selection of an official name for the organization which will be selected at the next meeting.

Janet Aire, a City of Bay St. Louis representative, addressed the group on the first annual Hancock County Fall Festival scheduled for October 18 and 19.

John Harris gave a report to the group that the city is willing to give assistance in placing signs designating the area.

The primary task of the new organization is to promote the area and make visitors aware of the many services available in the designated area, Jurkowski stated.

Some 28 members attended the meeting.

Bylaws will also be on the agenda for the next meeting scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 11 at 5:30 p.m. at The Eatery, Beach Boulevard, Bay St. Louis.

Roberts said he regrets Bennett is leaving. "We will begin looking immediately for a replacement," Roberts added.

Decision delayed on central barn

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has been unable to decide what to do about the construction of a proposed $80,000 central barn for county road and bridge equipment.

The supervisors had been ex-

should pay the 15 teachers and said the paychecks were supposed to be distributed Friday, but action had been delayed until Tuesday because time had to be allowed for a board decision.

Gex said he interprets the law to mean that the school district can not pay the teachers for the eight days until next August.

Board Member Cyril Glover asked that Gex and Oge look into an option in the law that allows teachers to be paid twice each month instead of once each month to see if their September wages could be divided into two payments.

The board agreed that doing so would provide the teachers with some relief by paying them with some money on or about the 15th of the month.

Gex is also going to request a state attorney general's opinion to see if the district can pay the teachers for the days worked according to the expected to make a decision on land acquisition Thursday, but were unable to do so because all appraisal are not available yet.

In the absence of Beat Five Supervisor James Travirca, who was attending a meeting in Jackson but is in charge of the barn project, the board tabled the matter until Tuesday.

Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner said the owners of the property proposed for purchase want to obtain some appraisals of their own.

The property is adjacent to the Highway 43 Community Center in Kiln.

The supervisors also were undecided whether or not the barn should be placed behind or to the right of the center building.

Board President Betty Diboll said she plans to try to obtain the assistance of the Mississippi Association of School Boards in asking the legislature to change the law.

Board Member Linda Penrose contacted local banks and said their officials were willing to assist teachers in obtaining loans. She said she was unable to obtain a special interest rate for teachers but hoped one could be arranged.

"We want to do everything we can to help the teachers but we don't want to break the law," Board Member Reginald Robinson.

Three teachers were crying when they left the meeting.

Command change

Captain Zuberbuhler, a native of Hoboken, N.J., graduated from Xavier University in 1962. He attended Officer Candidate School in Newport, R.I., and was commissioned in April 1964. Following flight training Captain Zuberbuhler was designated a Naval Aviation Observer (Navigation) in February 1965.

He reported to Patrol Squadron Eighteen based at U.S. Naval Station Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico in July 1965. His next assignment was to the Naval Recruiting Station, New York City, serving as Officer Program Officer. An assignment to the USS Franklin D. Roosevelt followed where he qualified as officer of the Deck Underway and served as assistant navigator.

After a tour with Patrol Wing Eleven, he reported in February 1971 to the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, Calif., where he received a master of science degree in oceanography in June 1973.

Captain Zuberbuhler joined Patrol Squadron Five, N.J., in October 1973 where he served as tactics officer, training officer, and operations officer.

During this tour he was deployed to Keflavik, Iceland and Sicily.

Sicily.

In January 1979, he assumed command of the Naval Facility, Lewes, Del. and during this tour the facility earned three consecutive Oceanographic Systems Atlantic Battle "E's" and was awarded the Meritorious Unit Commendation.

He reported to Oceanographic Development Squadron Eight in June 1980.

Captain Zuberbuhler is married to the former Patricia Ann McGarry of Belvoir, Ohio. They and their children, Billy, Lynn and Danny will make their home in Long Beach.

Wastewater

calls for extending sewerage service to four of the county's more populated areas, including Shoreline Estates, also known as Garden Isles; part of Shoreline Park; Jourdan River Estates and Jourdan River Isles.

However, none of the county residents are expected to have sewerage service before 1988, which was the basis for Ladner's objection.

"I don't mind paying when those services begin, but I object to paying for what we are not receiving," Ladner said.

Kellar reminded Ladner that the county has been threatened with a moratorium on new construction by the State Board of Health, State Bureau of Pollution Control and U.S.

Environmental Protection Agency unless some plan for sewerage in the unincorporated areas is provided.

He added that much of the money involved in the project will be reimbursable once a special sewerage tax district is created.

Kellar said that the county's share of the wastewater costs, which is 10 percent of the total cost, was originally $35,000.

"I think they've been more than fair with us. I really think our pro rata share should be more than 10 percent," the supervisor said.

The supervisors meet again Tuesday at 9 a.m., but no action is expected on the wastewater matter until after the joint meeting.

Nation-Dodson

First Baptist Church of Bay St. Louis was the setting for the August 9 afternoon marriage of Melinda Anne Dodson of Long Beach and Emmitt Wade Nation of Gulfport. Dr. Nathan Barber officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Dodson of Long Beach. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Emmitt Nation of Gulfport. The sanctuary was decorated with arrangements of white gladioli, fuchsias and baby's breath, flower-decorated gothic candelabra and arca palms. The pews of the center aisle were marked with flowers and ribbon.

Musical selections were presented by violinist Siyamak Rasty of Baton Rouge, La.; organist/pianist Tom Jacobs of Long Beach, and vocalists Mrs. Peggy Tedford of Waveland and Dorcinda Mullin of Long Beach.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of pale ivory satin in traditional styling with high collar and yoke of English net outlined with venise lace. Her long, sheer tapered sleeves and fitted basque bodice were appliqued with Schiffli and venise laces and embroidered with seed pearls and iridescent. The full skirt was appliqued with cutwork embroidered lace and the hemline was bordered with scalloped lace, as was the cathedral train.

She wore a lace and pearl decorated tiara headpiece which held a waltz-length veil of illusion.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white bridal roses, fresia, stephanotis and baby's breath with English ivy.

Diana Dodson of Gretna, La. attended her sister as maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Kathy Dodson of Long Beach, sister of the bride; Leigh Graves of Starkville, Miss.; Karen Brown of Biloxi; Suzanne Moss of Huntsville, Ala. and Mrs. Vicki Randall of Gulfport.

Miss Katie Madden of Hattiesburg was flower girl.

The attendants were attired in rose moire taffeta gowns, each with princess bodice, sweetheart neckline, puffed elbow-length sleeves and softly gathered skirt. They carried stylized crescent bouquets of silk roses, blush clematis, rhododendron and baby's breath with English ivy.

The groom's father served as best man.

Groomsmen were Tony Dodson of Long Beach, brother of the bride; Barry Foster; Steve Lee; Bruce Nation and Steve Nation, brothers of the groom; all of Gulfport.

Mrs. Dodson chose for her daughter's wedding a georgette crepe gown in French mauve featuring a V-neckline, three-quarter-length sleeves, dropped waist styling banded at the hip and adorned with jewel trim, handkerchief hemline and matching accessories.

The groom's mother wore a grey lace dress in tea-length with long sleeves, dropped waist and handkerchief hem. They wore orchid corsages.

A reception followed the ceremony in the First Baptist Church fellowship hall. Mrs. Lois McAlister provided musical selections at the piano.

Also assisting at the reception were Margaret Caruso and Mrs. Nancy Wambsgans and Becky Tedford, all of Waveland; Mrs. Cheryl Nation and Mrs. Wanda Nation, both of Gulfport; Heather Amick of Long Beach; and De Shea Blanchette and Dina Kaplinger. Melinda Smith kept the guest register.

On return from a wedding trip to Jamaica, the couple resides in Baton Rouge.

Pre-nuptial parties

A miscellaneous shower at the First Baptist Church fellowship hall was hosted by Mrs. Catherine McCraw, Mrs. Pat Barber, Mrs. Paddy Johnson, Mrs. Mary Chapman; Mrs. Mary Anne Blanchette; Melinda Smith, Becky Tedford, Mrs. Bobbie Gibson and Mrs. Peggy Tedford.

The Long Beach home of Mrs. Rosemary Pike was the setting for a miscellaneous shower hosted by Mrs. Pike, Mrs. Nina Manly and Mrs. Lautain Scruggs.

A recipe and spice shower was hosted by Karen Brown and Phoebe Manning at the Mannino home in Gulfport.

A luncheon at Mary Mahoney's in Biloxi was hosted by Mrs. Charleen Varner and Mrs. Vicki Randall.

A bridesmaids luncheon was hosted by Mrs. Julia Ann Caruso, Mrs. Nancy Wambsgans and Margaret Caruso in the Caruso home in Waveland.

A cocktail party was held in the Quail Ridge Drive home of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Day, also hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Steve Lee.

The groom's father served as best man.

Groomsmen were Tony Dodson of Long Beach, brother of the bride; Barry Foster; Steve Lee; Bruce Nation and Steve Nation, brothers of the groom; all of Gulfport.
